

Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, SW
Abernathy
Room 8B201
Copps
Washington, D.C. 20554
Martin
(202) 418-1000 phone

Chairman Michael K. Powell
Commissioner Kathleen Q.

Commissioner Michael J.

Commissioner Kevin J.

Reference: FCC Docket Nos 96-45, 98-171, 90-571, 92-237, 99-200, 95-116, 98-170 and NSD File No. L-00-72.

Dear FCC:

Why is it that the FCC always feels it is necessary to attack the financial status of the middle to lower income families? We use our phone for emergency times only. The main breadwinner of our family was out of work for more than ten months, due to our country's economy, thus leaving us with many debts and ruining our credit. We have been unable to get a cell phone through the larger companies and have now found a way to protect ourselves in an emergency and you want to increase our payments. I really think you need to reevaluate your priorities and find other ways to get the money you so desire instead of attacking people who can little afford your demands.

Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter. Please provide a written response indicating the status/resolution of this matter.

Very truly yours,

Patricia Pintarich
5 Berkley Ave

CC: FCC Subcommittee Members